Your Excellency,

Please allow me to contact you out of concern for the Iranian citizen Ghazal Marzban. As a Christian, she has exercised her right to freely choose her religion. After peacefully advocating for her right to change her religion, she was first detained for two months beginning in November 2024, and was arrested again on 14 January 2026. Since that day, no information regarding her whereabouts has been made available.

The Islamic Republic of Iran has ratified the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, thereby assuming binding obligations under international law. Article 18 of this document guarantees every person the right to change their faith as well as to promote it. I therefore appeal to you to advocate for the immediate and unconditional release of this prisoner of conscience.

Most respectfully,
